EVIDENCE & JUDGEMENT

Measure what your AI reviewers disagree on

Two models can agree often and still miss the same mistake. Compare their verdicts with decisions made by someone who knows the work.

A Split in the Proof

In a 2023 study, GPT-4 and Claude agreed on 66% of 3,062 paired verdicts when they judged responses in Chatbot Arena and ties were included. Agreement was 95% among the 1,712 paired verdicts where both chose a winner. The higher figure describes a narrower set. It leaves out cases that a team using AI reviewers would still have to resolve.

A handover should show the person covering the work when to stop a routine process and where to take the case next.

Put an example beside the written rule. Ask your colleague to point out what changes the next action and whom they would contact.
