JAMAICA

Who would supply the power for Jamaica's AI plans?

The Government has approved signing an agreement to explore AI infrastructure. Jamaicans still need to know what would be built and who would pay to support it.

Prime Minister Andrew Holness said on 15 November that the Government had approved signing an agreement to explore AI infrastructure with investors. The public remarks reported from the Montego Bay meeting did not establish whether the plan calls for a data centre. Ask what would be built before estimating the effect on bills or jobs.

If a data centre is proposed, ask how much electricity it would need at its busiest, how it would cool its equipment and who would cover the cost of new connections. Local employers can ask which roles would be trained here and when.
